Erin Holve
Senior Director
Academy Health

Erin Holve, PhD MPH MPP is a Senior Director at AcademyHealth, the professional society of health services research and policy. Dr. Holve has served as interim board member for APDU in 2014 and moderated and developed sessions for the APDU annual meeting on health data. Dr. Holve is particularly interested in serving on the APDU board to integrate health topics into more APDU offerings, as well as introduce new audiences in health research and policy to APDU's many useful resources and services.

Dr. Holve leads AcademyHealth's work on research and education in health services research. As principal investigator of the EDM Forum, a multi-year project funded by the Agency for Healthcare Research and Quality, she spends much of her time identifying and addressing the opportunities and challenges of using digital health data for research and quality improvement. She has developed several websites and a new open access journal – eGEMs - to promote the use and visualization of health data, and maintains an active interest in data policy.
